

WOODSTOCK, VIRGINIA.

FRIDAY, JULY 7, 1905.

Senator Martin on Saturday addressed the largest assembly that ever gathered in the Court-house at Christiansburg. In the course of his speech he alluded to an alleged insinuation of his competitor in his Roanoke speech that the State committee at its recent meeting did the bidding of the junior Senator and had runners going to and from the Senator's headquarters while it was in session. He said he had not consulted the State committee or any member of it upon any question, except one. He did confer with Mr. George Jones, of Norfolk county as to the best way to settle the Norfolk county controversy, and instead of Mr. Jones being a supporter of his, he was supporting his competitor.

MUD-SLINGING and dirt-throwing never advances any cause. In the beginning of the present campaign there was manifestation of work of this kind. The press of the state promptly condemned it, and as the campaign progressed there was less of it. What applies to a general campaign will with equal force apply to the contest for local offices. Candidates should run upon their own merits and not upon the faults of their competitors. The people will find the faults, but they don't like the candidates that seek offices upon the short comings of others. Vote for the men that possess the necessary qualifications and that can best serve the interests of the state and your own individual interests.

The mayor of Philadelphia is cleaning up his city. A large number of dives, assignation houses, &c., were raided and as a result a large number of people were brought before court. They were of all grades. Some who posed as the "best people," were compelled to take their places among the lowest dives. Three women attempted to kill themselves, when they learned that their shame would be exposed. The fines upon the men amounted to $5,000. The women were held for their appearance in court. If the mayor of Philadelphia can succeed in cleansing the political dives and in having a fair election, something that has not been known in Philadelphia for many years, he will certainly deserve the thanks not only of the good people of that city, but of the entire country.

The Candidates for nomination will be voted for at the Primary Election to be held August 22nd, are as follows:

FOR GOVERNOR.
Jos. E. Willard.
Claude A. Swanson.
W. H. Mann.
FOR U. S. SENATOR.
Thomas S. Martin.
A. J. Montague.
FOR LIEUT. GOVERNOR.
J. Austin Cabell.
J. Taylor Ellyson.
FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL.
Samuel W. Williams.
William A. Anderson.
FOR SPT. OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.
George H. Hulvey.
J. D. Eggleston, Jr.

As there is but one candidate for State Treasurer, Mr. Harman will be proclaimed the regular candidate.

The names given above are those of good men. They would creditably fill the offices to which they aspire. As it is necessary to make choice, it would be well for democrats to familiarize themselves with the names and thus be better enabled to vote for the men of their choice.

John Hay, Secretary of State, who had been in failing health for some time, died in Newbury, N. H., last Friday night. The deceased had recently been critically ill from uremia, although it was thought by the physicians who attended him that they had succeeded in relieving him to such an extent that death was not regarded as immediate although many looked upon his demise as imminent. The deceased was justly recognized as one of the ablest men who ever filled the position of Secretary of State. His natural abilities, long experience in statecraft and his diplomatic training, extending over a period of two score years, had made him a man of recognized ability not only in the United States but throughout the world.

TO THE SURVIVORS OF THE 33rd, VIRGINIA INFANTRY.

In this issue is published a letter from Col. W. T. Poague, of Lexington, Va., giving a history of the part taken by the 33rd Virginia Regiment in the first battle of Manassas. Col. Poague was on the field, was an eye witness of the engagement, and gathered up the guns, harness, etc., the next day. He was not a member of the regiment, whose history he writes. This letter should be carefully preserved by every member of the regiment now living and by the descendants of those who are dead. Those who are not subscribers of the HERALD can get a copy free at the HERALD office.

Col. Poague gives full credit to the regiment which played so important a part on that eventful day. We are, however, of the opinion that a part of the credit which he gives to the 33rd is due to some of the other regiments of the Stonewall brigade. It is true that that regiment alone charged against the orders of Gen. Jackson, that it checked the advance of the enemy, drove two regiments back, captured a battery, killed many of the cannoners and all the horses, but it did not attack both batteries. It destroyed Griffin's battery, but in the opinion of the writer, who stood by the captured guns, and repeated the order to shoot the horses, it did not assist in the capture of Rickett's battery. Besides the location of Rickett's battery as now marked on the battle-field is not at the place where Col. Cumming's regiment fought. From the location of Griffin's battery we could look down into a hollow from which a flanking column was pouring into our regiment a murderous fire, but from the location of Rickett's battery which was probably a hundred yards to our right, we could not see the hollow.

As the official report of Col. Cummings was lost, his letter which was published in the Richmond Dispatch about a month ago and the letter of Col. Poague are both important historical documents.

A CONSTRUCTIVE SENATOR.

The attempt has been made persistently by Senator Martin's "distinguished competitor" to belittle him as a Senator. Martin, in his speech here last court day, very effectively answered these aspersions. No unbiased man could have listened to his address without being impressed with the belief that Virginia had in him a strong, capable, vigilant and conscientious representative in the upper house of Congress, and a man worthy to represent her in the councils of this great nation. Replying to the charge spread broadcast, in the attempt to weaken his popular strength by an appeal to the pride of Virginians, that he stood for no measure of importance to the country, and his name was in no wise identified with national measures, the Senator, with the effect of simple irrefutable statement of fact, said:

"Nearly two-thirds of the Senate, and as great a proportion of the House, is Republican. The foreign and domestic policy of this country is controlled by Republicans. No Democratic Senator has been able to secure constructive legislation."

How completely does this dispose of the criticism that Virginia's junior Senator has not been known in important legislation. How hollow does it make the argument of any man who would insult the intelligence of Virginia people by arraigning the Senator for such a reason?

By his sound sense, by his diligent attention to all the duties that were presented to him, by the absence of useless talk on impracticable propositions in the body and has placed himself in a position to make his power felt and reflect credit on his State when his opportunities are broadened with the return of his party to power. How long that will be delayed will, we believe, depend upon how fast men of the Martin wisdom and capabilities can be secured in control of the Democratic representation in the Senate. The Democrats of the Senate have, in no small degree, been made up during the past twelve years of men who represent the hysterical in politics. Eloquence has overflowed in hostility to every proposition before the country, provided only the Republican majority seems to favor the proposition. It has been a party of negation. It has not appealed to the sound, business interests of the country, it has lagged behind the spirit of enterprise of the people. And it has again and again received a vote of no confidence. Virginia's junior Senator has, it is charged, had little to say during this period. Is there anything in the result to cause shame for his course on the part of his constituents?

A review of the recent history of the Senate should convince any one that no more dangerous mistake for the good name of this Commonwealth could be made than to replace a man of the junior Senator's qualifications with one who, though smooth of speech, is but a counterpart of so many Democratic Senators; one who, his own friends cannot deny, has by his want of wisdom in speech been injuring his own cause for Senator ever since he opened his lips in the campaign at Spotsylvania, three months ago. The Republican Nomination for County Clerk.

MR. EDITOR:—The contest for the Republican nomination for County Clerk seems to be now on in earnest between Dr. S. J. Hoffman and Mr. L. S. Walker, and the Republicans seem to be alive to the importance of nominating a new man. If they do not, they will simply invite defeat at the polls.

In the County election of May, 1899, the Republicans of Shenandoah county presented to the voters of the county an issue which embodied a principle that was favorably received by them and in part endorsed by their votes at the polls. "Life tenure in County offices." So persistently have the Republicans appealed to the voters along this line that it has become the policy if not a principle of the party. In that same election of 1899, Mr. G. Harry Haun opposed and defeated Mr. G. W. Milley using no other than the long term argument. Just four years later, Mr. Joseph C. Hutcheson defeated Capt. Geo. W. Kountz, wholly on the same ground. Mr. L. S. Walker, who was in favor of the election of Mr. Haun and Mr. Hutcheson to their respective offices, has again announced his candidacy for County Clerk, which office he has held for nearly thirty years, and has named as his deputy, Mr. C. Harry Haun, the same man, that defeated Mr. Milley six years ago on the anti-long term issue. Is this consistent with the sentiment which the Republicans have advocated for the past ten years.

The advocates of Mr. Hutcheson and Mr. Haun appealed to the voters to ignore party affiliation, personal friendship, and disregard any past favor that might influence a man to vote for Capt. Geo. W. Kountz or Mr. G. W. Milley. Why? Just to turn the offices of Treasurer and Clerk over to two inexperienced young men, one of whom, was at the time of his election enjoying a salaried position. No man persuaded that the voters of Shenandoah county had a higher object in view. I believe that they were consistently contending for a principle which applies as strongly to Mr. Walker as it did to Mr. Kountz and Mr. Milley. If they were not, then there is no inconsistency in Mr. Walker's candidacy. If casting your ballots for Dr. Hoffman means nothing more than the transfer of the office from Walker to Hoffman, then the friends of Dr. Hoffman do not ask for the transfer; but, if it means the opening of avenues of preferment to all citizens of the County; if it means encouragement to our young men to qualify themselves for positions of honor and profit; if it means a higher citizenship, then the Republicans of Shenandoah county should support Dr. Hoffman at thirteenth meetings soon to be called.

On Friday morning, June 30th, Mrs. Sarah Lichter, who resided near the Farmer's Mill, died. She was aged 67 years, 8 months and 5 days. The cause of death was heart trouble. She is survived by seven children, Mrs. Sidney Bowers, of Illinois, Mrs. Ella Henrich, of Grafton, W. Va., Mrs. Mollie Strickler, of Brunswick, Md., Miss Kate Lichter, who lived with her mother, Daniel Lichter, conductor on the W. Va. Central R. R., Samuel Lichter, of Illinois, and James W. Mrs. Ellen Wilkin, and little Miss Dorcas Saum, visited D. E. Saum, the first of the week.

The "4th" passed off very quietly, owing to the fact that the farmers are so pushed with their grain that their 4th will come later.

A very enjoyable party was given at the home of Mr. John Saum, on last Wednesday evening. About forty guests were present, ice cream and cakes were beautifully served. All expressed themselves as having spent a most enjoyable time. Our sympathy is extended to the young gentleman whose horse left him.

The festival to be held on the school grounds on Saturday night, July 8th, as advertised last week, it is hoped, will be well attended and thus encourage the young ladies in the good work they have undertaken.

LIBERTY FURNACE.

The Fourth at the Furnace was a quiet one. The only evidence the writer saw was a large American flag suspended from the second story of the Company's home.

A great many took holiday on the Fourth. R. F. Watson spent the Fourth with his family in Rockingham county.

Governor Merriam came to Liberty with his family on Monday.

It has been reported to me, Miss Maud Fadel, of Columbia Furnace, was married to Scott Jenkins, on the Fourth.

Want of bee is the cause of the Furnace being blanked. Lack of men is the cause of lack of bee.

Mrs. Long had as her guest, last week, Miss Willie Hollar, of Columbia. This week her mother, Mrs. Wm. Hollar, of the above place is visiting here.

Rev. Mr. Nevitt, Jr., of Edinburg, will preach at the school house Sunday morning next at 10 o'clock.

Ed Strauderman, of Lost City, W. Va., was here at Liberty last week. Some ladies from Philadelphia came up on the Company's train to view some of the beauties of Liberty. Messrs. Lee, Wilson and Loose did the honors, but a storm marred the afternoon pleasures.

A number of houses for the miners are being built at a very pretty spot on Liberty's grounds known as Sugar Camp.

John Monday.

We have in Great Britain our Gov. Friday, but Clean Monday is peculiar to a Grecian institution. It is the day that ushers in the great Lenten fast at Athens, and the people go holiday making to eat Lenten fare on the hill around the city, while the shepherd and country people dance the ancient Greek dances in the old temples. The practice is termed "cutting the nose of Lent," and obviously Clean Monday is parallel to our Shrove Tuesday and its pancakes.—London Telegraph.

Raising the Hat.

The polite custom of raising the hat to a lady dates back to the days of chivalry, when knights never appeared in public except in armor. On entering the house of a friend, however, or a room in which there were ladies, it became the custom for a knight to remove his helmet as a sign that, being in the presence of friends, he was safe from attack.
